Working with glass and fusing glass is fun and creative but, has possible dangers that can mostly be avoided with careful behaviors and practices.

- Wear closed shoes at all times
- If working with hot kiln techniques wear long sleeved shirts and long pants made of cotton
- Always wear eye protection
- Never leave glass extending outside the table surface or stack glass so that it may slip or fall
- Use caution selecting pieces of cut glass from storage bins
- Never sweep hand across work surface to collect or try to clean an area, use brush or vacuum
- Never try to catch a piece of glass that may be accidentally falling
- Always assume the kilns are hot and may burn, do not touch
- Move slowly and deliberately in the glass area, review your intended area to walk and avoid inadvertent contact with furniture or other individuals in class
- Small cuts are inevitable, remove any possible glass slivers, clean carefully with alcohol or antiseptic and bandage with band-aide
